Malone Design & Build Employees Receive Prestigious Certification
Program Educates Design-Builders on Issues Related to Church Construction

August 22, 2005: O'Fallon, IL-- Two Malone Design & Construction employees have been certified by the National Association of Church Design Builders (NACDB) in the Certified Church Consultant (CCC) program.

President Rob Malone and Vice President Marty Malone attended a three day educational seminar to learn more about the particular needs that design-builders address while planning, designing and constructing churches and church-related facilities.

"We are certified to provide local church leaders with design-build principles that address their ministry needs," said Marty Malone, Vice President at Malone Design & Construction. "The program helped us understand the unique needs and financial considerations that are important to churches."

Already a member of the NACDB, Malone Design & Construction is one of only 22 design-build contractors nationwide to belong to this esteemed organization.

"Even to become a member of the NACDB, a firm must exemplify integrity and honesty," said Marty Malone. "Malone Design & Construction underwent an extensive process to join the selective organization."

The NACDB, a non-profit organization of leading designers and builders, was created to serve as a resource to religious and other non-profit groups on the planning, design and construction of churches and church-related facilities.

Malone Design & Construction, founded in 1976, is an innovative company that specializes in both the design and building aspects of commercial construction. The full-service firm provides a "Concept to Completion" approach that ensures seamless project delivery.
